ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A support for a material to be fired for a ceramic dental prosthesis, having a support plate dimensionally stable when heat is applied and having a plurality of passages which are arranged perpendicularly relative to the support plate surface. A bundle of several pins, which in an undeformed state extend parallel with each other, can be introduced into each one of the passages for placing the dental prosthesis to be fired on them.